INTRODUCTION

11. “Sometimes I wonder how it came to this”: Interview with Deb White, 2005.
11. Americans tiptoe through law: See generally, Philip Howard, Collapse of the Common Good (New York: Ballantine, 2001), pp. 3-70. For polls on fear of litigation, see “Americans Do Not Trust the Legal System,” Harris Interactive, commissioned by Common Good, June 27, 2005 and “Fear of Litigation: The Impact on Medicine,” Harris Interactive, April 11, 2002. Both are available at <http://commongood.org/society-reading-cgpubs-polls.html>.
11. “I don’t deal with patients the same way anymore”: Interview with a pediatrician in North Carolina, 2005.
12. Proportion of lawyers in the workforce: Robert Putnam, Bowling Alone: America’s Declining Social Capital (New York: Simon & Schuster, 1995), 146.
12. Mother Theresa’s homeless shelter: See Philip K. Howard, The Death of Common Sense (New York: Random House, 1995), pp. 1-2; Sam Roberts, “Fight City Hall? Nope, Not Even Mother Teresa,” New York Times, September 17, 1990.
12. The double slide in Oologah: See Philip K. Howard, The Collapse of the Common Good, pp. 1-3; John M. Wylie II, “Slide Moves to New Rural Home,” Oologah Lake (OK) Leader, February 2, 1996.

12. Political leaders’ endorsement of The Death of Common Sense: See “The Birth of Common Sense: Bill Clinton Outflanks the Republicans on Regulatory Reform,” Newsweek, May 27, 1995; Al Gore, Common Sense Government, with introduction by Philip K. Howard (New York: Random House, 1995); Zell Miller, “Is Fairness in Public Schools Unfair?” AEI-Brookings Joint Center event transcript, May 11, 2004, <http://www.reg-markets.org/publications/abstract.php?pid=771>.

14. “a single, unique, independent... whole thing”: Chester Barnard, The Functions of the Executive (Cambridge, MA: Harvard UP, 1966), p. 12.

CHAPTER 1 : THE BOUNDARIES OF LAW

15. The Tomlinson swimming case: Here and below, information and quotes related to the Tomlinson case come from Tomlinson v. Congleton Borough Council, UKHL 47 (2003).
16. Lawsuits “often have their greatest effect”: Derek Bok, Law and Its Discontents: A Critical Look at Our Legal System, 37th Annual Benjamin N. Cardozo Lecture, November 9, 1982, reprinted in The Record, January/February, 1983, p. 21. See also Page Keeton and William Lloyd Prosser, The Law of Torts, 5th ed., (Eagan, MN: West, 1984): “[T]he twentieth century has brought an increasing realization of the fact that the interests of society in general may be involved in disputes in which the parties are private litigants.”
16. Greenwich sledding case: Patrick Healy, “Town’s Downhill Pastime May Face an Uphill Fight,” New York Times, April 26, 2004. For other sledding bans, see Karen Sloan, “Lawsuit Fears Close Two Omaha Sled Slopes,” Omaha World-Herald, January 3, 2007, <http://archives.starbulletin.com/2006/07/26/news/story03.html>; Carol Stark, “Fun May Be Next on the Banned List,” Joplin Globe (MO), December 7, 2007; and, in a happy reversal, Edward Sieger

“Update: Easton, PA Overturns Sledding Ban,” Pennsylvania Express-Times, December 13, 2007. In 2006, the American Bar Association declined to sponsor a surfing event, for fear that one of its members might get hurt and sue. See Stewart Yerton, “Liabilities scare lawyers’ group away from surf meet,” Honolulu Star Bulletin, July 26, 2006, <http://starbulletin.com/2006/07/26/news/story03.html>

17. “The only freedom that deserves the name”: John Stuart Mill, On Liberty (New York: Penguin, 1982), p. 72.

17. “Insist on yourself”: Ralph Waldo Emerson, “Self-Reliance,” Essays and Lectures (New York: Library of America, 1983), pp. 278-79.

17. “Trust yourself”: Ibid., p. 260..

18. Handcuffed 5-year old: See the video embedded with the article, “Handcuffed 5-Year Old Sparks Suit,” CBS/AP, April 25, 2005, http://www.cbsnews.com/stories/2005/04/25/earlyshow/main690601.shtml?source=search\_story

19. Swimming teacher must ask for consent: Interview with one of the author’s daughter’s roommates, 2005.

20. Suit over touching a seventh grader’s back: Joshua Kaplowitz, “How I Joined Teach for America—and Got Sued for $20 Million,” City Journal, Winter, 2003.

20. Teachers’ careers ruined by allegations: Howard, The Collapse of the Common Good, see note to page 11, pp. 9-10. See also June Kronholz, “Cary Schools Tell Teacher, ‘Don’t Touch, Don’t Hug,’” Wall Street Journal, May 28, 1998; and Gerald Grant, “Children’s Rights and Adult Confusion,” The Public Interest, Fall, 1982, pp. 92-95.

21. Mariya Fatima: Carrie Melago, “How Queens school failed Mariya Fatima after stroke,” New York Daily News, September 10, 2007; Erin Einhorn and Carrie Melago, “Queens high school staff told to forget 911 in emergency,” New York Daily News, October 15, 2007.

22. Rules don’t make decisions: See Joseph Raz, Practical Reason and Norms (Oxford: Oxford UP, 1999), p. 115. The inability of rules to dictate sensible action is known as “rule indeterminacy.” See generally H.L.A. Hart, The Concept of Law (Oxford: Clarendon, 1994), pp. 123-28. See also Cass R. Sunstein, Legal Reasoning and Political Conflict (New York: Oxford UP, 1996), pp. 91-93. For a related discussion, see Stanley Fish, “Dennis Martinez and the Uses of Theory,” 96 Yale Law Journal 1773 (July, 1987).

23. Expansion of law books: Allen Weinstein, “A Milestone for Democracy’s Daily Gazette,” <http://www.archives.gov/federal-register/the-federal-register/archivist-article.pdf>

24. Employee manuals: These prohibited questions are contained in the Human Resources manual of a company the author works with.

24. Legal obstacles to suspending a student: See “Over Ruled: The Burden of Law on America’s Public Schools,” Common Good, November 29, 2004, <http://commongood.org/burden-of-law.html>.

24. First-grade sexual harassment case: Adam Nossiter, “6-Year-Old’s Sex Crime: Innocent Peck on Cheek,” New York Times, September 27, 1996.

24. Consumer Warnings: Wacky Warnings website, <http://www.wackywarnings.com/>

25. Unnecessary healthcare spending: See Daniel P. Kessler and Mark B. McClellan, “Do Doctors Practice Defensive Medicine?,” Quarterly Journal of Economics 111, no. 2 (1996), which estimates that 5 to 9% of total healthcare costs can be attributed to defensive medicine. Applied to the United States’ total healthcare spending in 2007, that range would be 115 to 207 billion dollars, or about $2,500 to $4,500 for each uninsured person. Defensive medicine is difficult to measure because of doctors’ mixed motives, among other things. Healthcare providers also make money by ordering tests that are not medically indicated. Defensiveness has become so ingrained in the healthcare culture that some providers have come to believe that tests are essential when they are not. At a Common Good forum, one Swedish doctor said that America had exported defensiveness to Sweden through doctors trained here. See “Administrative Approaches to Compensating for Medical Injury: National and International Perspectives,” Event Transcript 16, 22, Public Forum held by Common Good-Harvard School of Public Health at Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Washington, D.C., October 31, 2005. 32. “unobstructed action”: Thomas Jefferson to Isaac H. Tiffany, Political Writings, Joyce Appleby and Terence Ball, eds. (Cambridge, UK: Cambridge UP, 1999), p. 224.

32. “frontiers, not artificially drawn”: Isaiah Berlin, “Two Concepts of Liberty,” The Proper Study of Mankind: An Anthology of Essays, Henry Hardy and Roger Hausheer, eds. (New York: Farrar, Strauss and Giroux, 2000), p. 236.

32. “the boundaries of the protected domain”: Friedrich August Hayek, Law, Legislation and Liberty (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1981), p. 100.

33. “The end of law”: John Locke, Two Treatises of Government (Montana: Kessinger, 2004), p. 20.

CHAPTER 2: THE FREEDOM TO TAKE RISKS

34. Milford hickory trees: All information on this case, here and below comes from the following sources: Alison Leigh Cowan, “Boy with an Allergy Wins in Battle over City Trees,” New York Times, July 18, 2006. Interviews in 2006 with Una Glennon, Mayor James Richetelli, and Mary Ludwig, the president of Milford Trees, Inc., a local not-for-profit civic group. See also Philip K. Howard, “A Tree Falls in Connecticut,” New York Times, July 30, 2006.

35. “veil of ignorance”: For a full discussion of this idea, see John Rawls, A Theory of Justice (Oxford: Oxford UP, 1999).

35. Number of Americans allergic to nuts: S.H. Sicherer, A. Muñoz-Furlong, A.W. Burks, H.A. Sampson, “Prevalence of peanut and tree nut allergy in the US determined by a random digit dial telephone survey,” Journal of Allergy and Clinical Immunology 103, no. 4 (April, 1999).

36. Flame-retardant pajamas vs. smoke alarms: See Stephen Breyer, Breaking the Vicious Circle: Towards Effective Risk Regulation (Cambridge, MA: Harvard UP, 1993), p. 25, for a table of the cost per life saved of these and other governmental safety regulations.

36. Flame-retardant proves carcinogenic: W. Kip Viscusi, “Consumer Behavior and the Safety Effects of Product Safety Regulation,” 28 Journal of Law and Economics 3 (October, 1985), p. 536.

36. Pesticide tradeoffs: Breyer, Breaking the Vicious Circle, p. 23. Recently, the World Health Organization recommended that DDT, outlawed after the exposé in Rachel Carson’s Silent Spring, be used to combat malaria and set out guidelines that ensure the environment is protected. For a discussion of DDT and malaria risk, see John Tierney, “Fateful Voice of a Generation Still Drowns Out Real Science,” New York Times, June 5, 2007; Tina Rosenberg, “What the World Needs Now Is DDT,” New York Times, April 11, 2004; and Joanne Silberner, “WHO Backs Use of DDT against Malaria,” All Things Considered, National Public Radio, September 15, 2006.

36. “overweighting of low probabilities”: Daniel Kahneman and Amos Tversky, “Prospect Theory: An Analysis of Decision under Risk,” Econometrica 47, No. 2 (March, 1979).

37. Superfund vs. meningitis vaccine: Breyer, Breaking the Vicious Circle, see note to page 36, p. 19. See also Robert W. Hahn, ed., Risks, Costs, and Lives Saved: Getting Better Results from Regulation (Oxford: Oxford UP, 1996).

37. “People seem to think that products and activities are either ‘safe’ or ‘unsafe’”: Cass Sunstein, Risk and Reason: Safety, Law, and the Environment (Cambridge, UK: Cambridge UP, 2002), p. 289.

37. Children’s health vs. extreme care for the terminally ill: Ibid., p. 31.

38. The cost of obesity: Secretary Thompson hosted a weekend retreat in 2002 in which the author participated. For facts on obesity see Lynn C. Swann, “Combating the Epidemic of Childhood Obesity,” testimony, the Committee on Health, Education, Labor

& Pensions, U.S. Senate, October 5, 2004. See also the discussion, “Obesity Part 1: What’s needed to encourage a Culture of Fitness?” on NewTalk.org, July 29, 2008, <http://newtalk.org/2008/07/obesity-part-1-whats-needed-to.php>

39. John F. Kennedy’s Council on Youth Fitness: Interview with Lauri Macmillan Johnson, Professor in the School of Architecture and Landscape Architecture at the University of Arizona, 2000. For more, see C.W. Hackensmith, History of Physical Fitness Education (New York: Harper & Row, 1966), pp. 498-502.

39. Playground equipment ripped out: See Mathew Paust, “Gloucester schools ban monkey bars after injuries: Officials are concerned by an increase in playground accidents that resulted in broken bones,” Newport, VA Daily Press, November 15, 2006; Lynne Van Dine, “Safety: Playgrounds Could Harbor Hidden Hazards,” The Detroit News, August 14, 1996. See also the discussion in Philip K. Howard, The Collapse of the Common Good, see note to page 11, pp. 63-67.

39. Recess Games Banned: Judith Kieff, “The Silencing of Recess Bells,” Childhood Education 77, 2001.

39. Children’s exploration: Richard Louv, Last Child in the Woods (Chapel Hill, NC: Algonquin Books, 2005), p. 123.

39. “Countless communities”: Louv, Last Child in the Woods, p. 28.

39. Television time: James C. Hersey and Amy Jordan, “Reducing Children’s TV Time to Reduce the Risk of Childhood Overweight: The Children’s Media Use Study,” Highlights Report prepared for Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Research

Triangle Institute, March, 2007.

39. Ralph Nader and the safety movement: Following the publication of Ralph Nader’s Unsafe at Any Speed: The Designed-in Dangers of the American Automobile (New York: Grossman, 1965), activist groups concerned with consumer and safety issues brought about the creation of OSHA, the EPA, the CPSC, and eight major laws aimed at protecting consumers. See David Bollier, Citizen Action and Other Big Ideas: A History of Ralph Nader and the Modern Consumer Movement (Washington, DC: Center for Study of Responsive Law, 1989).

40. “unless designed for your age group”: Chris Kahn, “In the Pursuit of Safety, Teeter-Totters and Swings Are Disappearing,” South Florida Sun-Sentinel, July 18, 2005.

41. Safety and risk trade-offs: See Aaron Wildavsky, Searching For Safety (London: Transaction Books, 1988), which argues that dynamic trial and error—and the acceptance of risk—is the best way to calibrate resource allocation. See also Tim Gill, No Fear: Growing up in a Risk Averse Society (London: Calouste, Gulbenkian, 2007).

41. “The view that children... must be sheltered”: Joe L. Frost, “The dissolution of children’s outdoor play: causes and consequences,” Common Good, 2006, p. 8, http://commongood.org/assets/attachments/Frost\_-\_Common\_Good\_-\_FINAL.pdf

41. “Opportunities for spontaneous play”: William H. Dietz, “The obesity epidemic in young children: reduce television viewing and promote playing,” British Medical Journal, February 10, 2001.

42. “merry-go-rounds”: Alfred Holden, “The Playground War,” Taddle Creek, Summer, 2002, http://www.taddlecreekmag.com/the\_playground\_war. See also the website of the Institute of Child Studies, <http://www.oise.utoronto.ca/ICS/index.html>.

43. “children who don’t play much”: J.M. Nash, “Fertile Minds,” Time: Special Report, February 3, 1997, pp. 49-56. See also the Baylor study itself: Gail Lindsey, “Brain Research and Implications for Early Childhood Education,” Childhood Education 75, 1998.

43. “Early experiences determine which neurons are to be used”: Frost, “The Dissolution of Children’s Outdoor Play,” see note to page 41, p. 7.

43. The importance of play: For more on the topic, see Robert

Brooks and Sam Goldstein, Raising Resilient Children: Fostering Strength, Hope and Optimism in Your Child (New York: McGraw Hill Professional, 2001), which argues that many modern children lack the “capacity to cope and feel competent,” because society doesn’t allow them to experience and learn from mistakes. See also Joe L. Frost, “Neuroscience, Play, and Child Development,” paper presented at the IPA/USA Triennial National Conference, Longmont, CO, June 18-21, 1998; and Hara Estroff Marano, A Nation of Wimps: The High Cost of Invasive Parenting (New York: Broadway, 2008).

44. “Asphalt and concrete are unacceptable”: Sharon Mays, “Tips for Public Playground Safety,” National Network for Child Care, 1995, <http://www.nncc.org/Health/tippubplaygrnd.html>. In 2008, the rubber matting itself came under fire from the safety police. Safety advocates demanded that canopies be put over New York City’s playgrounds because the ubiquitous rubber safety matting became too hot and scalded barefoot children. “It is unconscionable that the city continues to install products in playgrounds that hurt the most vulnerable park users—small children,” Geoffrey Croft, a member of NYC Park Advocates, said in an interview with the Daily News. “How many more have to get hurt until someone is held accountable?” (Jeff Wilkens, Elizabeth Hays, and Rachel Monahan, “Angry parents remove dangerously overheated playground mats,” New York Daily News, July 20, 2008). The City’s Parks Commissioner suggested that they wear shoes (Sewell Chan, “Are Playground Safety Mats Too Hot to Handle?” New York Times, July 21, 2008). See also, Philip K. Howard, “Why Safe Kids Are Becoming Fat Kids,” Wall Street Journal, August 13, 2008.

45. “A nation of wimps”: Hara Estroff Marano, “A nation of wimps.” Psychology Today, November/December, 2004, <http://psychologytoday.com/articles/pto-20041112-000010.html> ; Estroff, A Nation of Wimps, see note to page 43.

46. “did not provide proper supervision”: Bob Kasarda, “Playground Safety Left up to Schools,” Munster (IN) Times, September 24, 2004. See also Don Kindon, Too Much of a Good Thing: Raising Children of Character in an Indulgent Age (New York: Hyperion, 2001), which cautions against the “luxury fever” and “low frustration tolerance” built into many contemporary children.

46. “To say ‘no running’”: Robin Bartleman, Broward County, FL, School Board member, “Selected Quotes and Excerpts—On the Need for Play,” http://www.commongood.org/assets/attachments/VoP\_-\_Selected\_Quotes\_and\_Excerpts.pdf . Bartleman was commenting on the district’s decision to post “Rules of the Playground” (including “no running”) at all 137 Broward elementary schools.

46. Parental Protectiveness: See Johan Huizinga, Homo Ludens (Boston: Beacon Press, 1955), in which the author describes the powerful social force of play—deeming a capacity for unobstructed and fun behavior one of the “bases of civilization.”

47. “Something is seriously awry”: Tony Blair, “Compensation Culture,” commencement speech, University College London, May 26, 2005, <http://www.number-10.gov.uk/output/Page7562.asp>.

73. Obstetricians' liability problems: In their 2006 "Survey on Professional Liability," the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists found that an average of three claims are brought against each ob-gyn during the course of her career. The majority of these lawsuits are brought by the parents of infants with cerebral palsy, which is caused by negligence less than 10% of the time (American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists and American Academy of Pediatrics, "Encephalopathy and Cerebral Palsy, Defining the Pathogenesis and Pathophysiology," January, 2003).

81. The Neutral Process Movement: See the discussion in Howard, The Collapse of the Common Good, see note to page 11, pp. 37-38 and 69-70. The neutral process movement, also known as the "legal process movement," was spawned by Henry Hart and Albert Sacks. See their textbook, Henry M. Hart, Jr. and Albert M. Sacks, The Legal Process: Basic Problems in the Making and Application of Law (Eagan, MN: West, 2001).

81. "it appears beyond doubt": Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41 (1957). This language was finally disavowed by the Supreme Court in Bell Atlantic Corp. et al. v. Twombly et al., 548 U.S. 903 (2007).

84. The Daubert decision on "junk science": Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, 509 U.S. 579 (1993). The critique of dubious experts was led by Peter Huber, whose book, Galileo's Revenge: Junk Science in the Courtroom (New York: Basic Books, 1993), made the case that letting juries sort through expert advice has led to dramatic miscarriages of justice. See also Walter Olson, The Rule of Lawyers (New York: St. Martin's, 2003), for the story of how one lawyer, John J. O'Quinn, bankrupted several companies on claims related to silicone breast implants, when there was no respectable scientific basis for the claims.

85. "result-oriented," "Judges are human": Arthur R. Miller,

“The Pretrial Rush to Judgment: Are the ‘Litigation Explosion,’ ‘Liability Crisis,’ and Efficiency Clichés Eroding Our Day in Court and Jury Trial Commitments?,” 78 New York University Law Review 982 (2003), p. 1071.

97. “Most people in the real world”: Interview with Alison Kliegman, 2007.

97. An instructive example of school bureaucracy: In December 2004, a majority of staff in 95 Queens schools voted to censure their superintendent for micromanagement that bordered on abuse. The censure described an “atmosphere that stifles their professional judgment and impedes their ability to provide the safest environment and the best possible education for their students.” “One of the superintendents’ principals had given out stopwatches to ensure that mini-lessons were exactly ten minutes long. Another teacher had written all of the Spanish text in her classroom in blue and all the English text in red; she was ordered to reverse the colors to meet protocol. It was a mountain of stricture—and the opposite of culture.” See Deidre McFayden, “Educators in Region 4: Don’t stop us from teaching our kids,” New York Teacher, January 18, 2005,

100. The burden on teachers: The obstacles that keep teachers from meeting their expectations grow constantly. Donald Graves, a leading oral historian of burnout, says “As I’ve traveled around the county the last five years, I’ve noticed increased tension and fatigue in our profession. Teacher judgment is continually bypassed by legislatures, state departments of education, and local administrations who try to micromanage the transactions between teachers and children...Tests are emphasized as ends in themselves rather than as indicators school systems need to consider for new directions...Senseless work in the midst of high pressure is a prescription for significant energy loss, chronic absenteeism, and a discouraged profession.” Donald Graves, The Energy to Teach (Portsmouth, NH: Heinemann, 2001), p. 3. The Wrights advise litigiousness and fear: “If the school is unwilling to resolve problems, ... [y]ou may have to engage in litigation,” p. 48; “If the school says, ‘The law says we cannot do what you ask us to do,’ you need to research the issue independently... Do not rely on legal advice produced by school personnel or articles written by others,” p. 131; “Ultimately, your success in a hearing will depend on the law and facts, the preparedness of the attorneys, and the life experiences of the hearing officer, Administrative Law Judge, or other decision-maker. The pre-existing beliefs and opinions of the decision-maker are more controlling of outcome than the facts and the law,” p. 190.

Plaintiffs Fare in Federal Court,” 1 Journal of Empirical Legal Studies 2 (July, 2004).

133. Protected categories: Federal law protects people from being fired or penalized based on race, color, religion, sex, or national origin (Title VII, Civil Rights Act of 1964); age (Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967); or disabilities (Title I and Title V of Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990). The wording of these laws does not cover only minorities or groups traditionally discriminated against but could also be used, for instance, on behalf of a man fired by a firm made up entirely of women. Most discrimination cases, however, are brought by women, minorities, older, and disabled persons, which together make up approximately 75% of the population (estimation based on numbers from the U.S. census bureau at <http://censtats.census.gov/> .

133. Pennsylvania discrimination suit: Michael Kinsman, “Career Pros: When Employers Misfire,” Job Journal, March 26, 2006.

159. Managing ulterior motives: Jonathan Rauch, discussion with the author, 2007. See generally Jonathan Rauch, Government’s End: Why Washington Stopped Working (New York: Public Affairs, 1999).

159. “We used to fight hard in the campaigns”: Discussion with Howard Baker, 2003.

160. Special interests: Separate discussions with Ron Faucheux and Rod DeArment, 2007. See Theda Skocpol, The Missing Middle (New York: The Century Foundation, 2000) for perspective on skewed political and electoral incentives. Skocpol observes that actual policy initiatives are not on politicians’ radars.

160. Trial lawyers’ contributions to political campaigns: “The Association of Trial Lawyers of America... routinely ranks among the top five PACs in federal campaign donations, leaning strongly to Democrats. In 2002, ATLA was the third most generous PAC, contributing $2.8 million; 89% of that money went to Democrats, making ATLA the largest PAC contributor to the Democratic party...

Through individual and soft money contributions, as well as PAC donations, the lawsuit industry has surpassed all others in political giving in every electoral cycle since 1990... All told, the litigation industry has contributed a staggering $470 million to federal campaigns since 1990,” from “The Best Friends Money Can Buy: Trial Lawyers, Inc. floods the political process with cash,” Trial Lawyers, Inc.: A Report on the Lawsuit Industry in America, 2003, <http://www.triallawyersinc.com/html/part10.html> . 183. “Amazingly few people”: Drucker, The Essential Drucker, see note to page 116, p. 220.

183. “the usual process of unconscious trial and error”: Michael Polanyi, Personal Knowledge: Towards a Post-Critical Philosophy (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1958), p. 62.

183. Fireman’s subconscious perceptions: Malcolm Gladwell, Blink: The Power of Thinking Without Thinking (New York: Little, Brown, 2005), p. 122.

184. “disappear into the task”: Mike Rose, The Mind at Work: Valuing the Intelligence of the American Worker (New York: Viking, 2004), p. 112. See also Barbara Garson, All the Livelong Day: The Meaning and Demeaning of Routine Work (New York: Doubleday, 1972), for further discussion of how employees unconsciously fight for discretion.

184. “our knowing is in our action”: Donald A. Shon, The Reflective Practitioner: How Professionals Think in Action (New York: Basic Books, 1983), p. 49.

184. “What you find when you get in close”: Atul Gawande, Complications: A Surgeon’s Notes on an Imperfect Science (New York: Macmillan, 2002), p. 4. See also Gary Klein, Intuition at Work (New York: Doubleday, 2003) for more on how intuition is a direct outgrowth of experience, not a short-cut.

184. Self-consciousness inhibits performance: Polanyi, Personal Knowledge, see note to page 183, pp. 55-57.

184. “it is this hesitation, doubt, and weakening of conviction”: Arum, Judging School Discipline, see note to page 96, p. 169.

185. “with a plausible cause”: Richard E. Nisbett and Timothy DeCamp Wilson, “Telling More than We Can Know: Verbal Reports on Mental Processes,” Psychological Review 84, No. 3 (May, 1977), p. 233.

185. “any true introspection”: Ibid., p. 231.

185. “testi-lying”: See Alan Dershowitz, “Accomplices to Perjury,” New York Times, May 2, 1994.

185. Human variability: See Hubert and Stuart Dreyfus, Mind Over Machine (New York: The Free Press, 1986), for the argument that knowledge cannot be engineered. The authors believe that decisions are made during the moments when there exist “a cluster of potential actions, [and] a space of and for evolving events,” p. 105. These are moments when intuition is needed.

185. “It is a profoundly erroneous truism”: Alfred North Whitehead, An Introduction to Mathematics (New York: Henry Holt, 1911), p. 61.

185. “If man were forced to demonstrate”: Tocqueville, Democracy in America, vol. 2, see note to page 31, p. 8.

186. “Good and bad are but names”: Emerson, “Self Reliance,” see note to page 17, p. 262. See Antonio Damasio, Descartes’ Error (New York: Avon Books, 1994) for a argument that humans who lack emotional and social input can’t make good decisions.

189. “The force of character is cumulative”: Emerson, “Self-Reliance,” see note to page 17, p. 266.

189. “speak[s] from his character”: Emerson, “The Over-Soul,” see note to page 17, p. 386.

189. “The heavy, leaden eyes turn on you”: Ralph Waldo Emerson, “July 6,” The Journals of Ralph Waldo Emerson (New York: Houghton Mifflin, 1912), p. 300.

190. “fear of freedom”: Erich Fromm, The Fear of Freedom (London: Kegan Paul, 1942).

190. “expect from the state ever more solutions”: Leszek

Kolakowski, Modernity on Endless Trial (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1990), p. 173.

190. Americans unhappy with the litigious culture: Two thirds of Americans believe we need fundamental changes in our civil justice system (“Public Attitudes toward the Civil Justice System,” see note to page 75). 93% of those polled in a 2001 survey said that they think people are too quick to sue. That same poll found that nearly 9 of 10 people believe there are too many frivolous lawsuits, and 7 of 10 believe that the large number of suits is evidence that our society is breaking down. See Stephen S. Meinhold and David W. Neubauer, “Exploring Attitudes About the Litigation Explosion,” 22 Justice System Journal 105, 108 (2001).

199. Machiavelli on reform: “There is nothing more difficult to carry out, nor more doubtful of success, nor more dangerous to handle, than to initiate a new order of things. For the reformer has enemies in all those who profit by the old order, and only lukewarm defenders in all those who would profit by the new order, this lukewarmness arising ...partly from the incredulity of mankind, who do not truly believe in anything new until they have actual experience of it,” Niccolo Machiavelli, The Prince, Luigi Ricci, trans. (New York: Signet Classic, 1999), pp. 49-50.
